

The End of the World

By Celia Cragg

I'm struggling through every disaster
The hurt and the pain coming faster and faster
Barely living just to survive the commotion
Everyone fighting against each other
Nothing getting better making me shudder
Crying as the world is getting destroyed
Screaming inside as my love gets deployed
It's all their fault there's a war in the world
Watching as the weapons are getting hurled
Right onto the people who follow you
Seeing the earth broken in two
I believed in peace but it's clear there is no such thing
But you're the one to blame you were the king